Day 2: The Accident

Thanks: T. Trimpe 2008 <http://sciencespot.net/>

Case Summary

There was nothing Leon, the driver, could do about the impending crash of the car he was driving. Leon knew the car would be completely demolished in the crash. After the crash Leon didn't have a scratch on him. How can that be?

Can you solve it?

Day 2: Surprise Visitor

Thanks: T. Trimpe 2008 <http://sciencespot.net/>

The clock in the courthouse ahead of Max showed six o'clock. As it began chiming, he noticed a tall man with a briefcase walking towards him. The man turned around, looked at the clock, and then quickened his steps. He took an envelope and dropped it in a mailbox as he continued on. Max moved faster, too. Miss Fritz had invited him for dinner. He didn't want to be late.

"I'm glad you could come," Harborville's oldest music teacher said. "I've made a lovely salad for us." She gestured Max to a chair. "Good thing I prepared ahead. A surprise visitor just left."

"Who visited?" Max asked.

"A teacher from Harborville's School for the Deaf," she replied. "He was totally deaf himself; poor man, but he could read lips perfectly. He had the loveliest penmanship when he wanted to tell me something."

"Why was he here?" he asked.

She said, "Well, evidently the school is low on funds. I was glad to help out. I had just cashed my social security check so I was able to give him five hundred dollars."

"Did he just leave?" he asked. "Was he a tall man with a brief case?"

"Yes," she replied.

"We'd better phone the police. I think that man was a phony. I know for sure he wasn't totally deaf."

How did Max figure it out?

Can you solve it?

3: Missing Masterpiece

Thanks: T. Trimpe 2008 <http://sciencespot.net/>

A painting by a world-renowned artist was stolen from the Forest Museum. The missing masterpiece is now in Kopy Kat's studio. The feline forger has already painted a copy of the artwork. Which one does Slylock Fox suspect is the original painting?

Hint: What is different about the owls?
